Design our Gala Invitation Contest

Anchorpoint Counseling Ministry needs your help in designing an invitation for our first annual Golden Anchor Gala; Celebrating People of Hope in our Community. So we decided to have a contest!

Contest theme: What does HOPE mean to you?

You may choose any medium you prefer: crayons, pen & ink, watercolors, paint, collage, use words (limit to 3 sentences), or computer (high res jpg...no clip art...must be original artwork).

We will select 3 winners. The first place winner will receive $50 and their artwork/words will be used on our Golden Anchor Gala promotional materials (invitation/thank you, etc.). Second and third place winners will each receive $25.

Top 3 submissions will be featured on our website.

Contest Details:

Contest Deadline: Monday, July 1, 2013

Age: Must be under age 18

Three winners will be selected from all entries submitted. Entries must be submitted on the official entry form, available on our website at:

For Parents and Teachers

Youth Activities That Teach Hope, by Thea Theresa English, eHow Contributor.

In an increasingly difficult and turbulent world, it's important that the youth remain optimistic and know that there is still hope regardless of tough situations. When they learn about the importance of hope in their lives it builds their character and it teaches them to become more service-oriented in their relationship to others around them. It's also beneficial for the youth to learn to be hopeful because it shows them the necessity of perseverance and not giving up on their goals when obstacles arise.
